

COVID-19: Health & Business Continuity

COVID-19's impact on healthcare and employee productivity has been substantial.

Discover just how significant the pandemic has been on health and business continuity, as well as the solutions you can adopt today to ensure a seamless transition back to normal.

Healthcare workers are nervous to come to work

44%

of companies reported that a big challenge they're experiencing is essential employees not coming to work due to fear of getting sick¹

What are companies doing to help their employees return safely?

43%

of companies are conducting employee COVID-19 screenings and assessments to protect the health of on-site employees.² Of those:

- ↳ 53% are administering symptom questionnaires on-site²
- ↳ 51% are requiring employee self-assessment and verification²

In an effort to bring employees back to work:

77%

of companies are prioritizing following government guidelines, procedures and protocols²

38%

of companies expressed the need for varying strategies based on different locations and sites²

Be prepared for your employees' return to work

In this next phase of reopening or restoring full operations, it's important that organizations tap into tools that are effective, customizable to their needs and protect the privacy of individuals' data.

navify.com

Sources:

¹ In the United States, how are companies adapting to the COVID-19 business and workforce environment? (2020). Mercer.

² Understanding the hidden costs of COVID-19's potential impact on US healthcare (September 2020). McKinsey & Company.